Aug. 1. --In spite of the restrictions of building operations throughout the Metropolitan district and the consequent more or less of a drag for building material during the first half of the season, there was recorded a pronounced rally in the demand for Portland cement, and while the price has not yet actually advanced there is a firm and rising tone to present quotations based upon the fine showing of the month of July and the exceptional prospects of growing demand in the month of August before us. July has recorded greater total sales of Portland cement than any previous year, with the volume increasing the first day of August. The call for cement for export has increased since the war agitations of Europe began and indications are that the fall and winter months will see the greatest activity that American Portland cement manufacturers have ever seen during the fall and winter months. Stocks of cement on hand are generally low and prompt deliveries on orders already booked are absorbing the attention of the mills, with the realization that they have got to provide a full capacity run for the balance of the season. This condition is particularly gratifying at this time after the long period of comparative dulness in the early part of the summer. new company now has a clear right of way to proceed grinding out cement from Humboldt hills. The company since the reorganization of the old Monarch Portland Cement...
