Manor Hall, an asylum for discharged prisoners, was formed in connection with this society, with a school of discipline or reform for younger prisoners. g Another very important branch is the Patronage Sub-committee, which meets once a week to give attention to the cases of discharged prisoners. An institution called the Elizabeth Fry Refuge (fitting memorial of such a woman!) is also a valuable auxiliary. But there were other fields of labour beside the prison, in which the ministry of woman in the communion of labour was needed. On one of these, circumstances were to arise which should be of such urgent character as to prepare the public mind for remarkable innovations on prejudice and conventualism. It is in retirement that all the great instruments of Divine Providence have matured their powers,...
