Although mission study in the Sunday School is of very recent origin, yet it is surprising how much good material is available for this purpose. The author believes a lesson on this chapter may be made the most practical and helpful of all. Helps for the Leaders. The following are especially helpful for superintendents, teachers and members of missionary committees. The Smoke of a Thousand Villages. By Joseph Clark. This unique booklet is most inspiring. Every Sunday School worker in the land should be familiar with its fine points on missionary instruction. Price, 5 cents, postpaid. The Sunday School and Missions. By Dr. John Franklin Goucher. An admirable statement on the importance of missions in the Sunday School, and a masterly argument for missionary education from the viewpoint of the total development of the child's religious life. Price 5 cents, postpaid. Missions in the Sunday School. By Martha B. Hixon. This is a strong, comprehensive, volume, dealing with this problem from many angles. It is a gold mine of suggestions. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper 35 cents. Missionary Methods for Sunday School Workers. By Geo. H. Trull. This is the newest and best book on this subject. The volume is packed with practical plans and is rich in suggestion. Mr. Trull is a practical Sunday-School man and has worked out these plans himself. Price, boards, 50 cents.
