They organized their thought, combined their efforts, gave their property, and, by the blessing of God, that idea has slowly but surely passed into a living reality. It has struck its roots deep into the soil of our state. By common consent it is recognized as one of the most salutary and vital moral forces in our beautiful city. It has made its mark. It has done good work. Its fruits are scattered all over the world. It seems fit and proper that we should now review some of the steps of our progress, and note some of the results of our labor. All organisms destined to long life are slow in maturing. Especially is this true of those whose cells and fibres are wrought out of labor, benevolent thought and self-sacrifice. This law of growth cannot be evaded nor transcended. Our growth has been slow. But more rapid growth might have endangered the solidity and proportion of the superstructure.
